TML and Tennessee Municipal League are proud to join with the National League of Cities, the International City, County, and Metropolitan Edison to promote the importance of civic engagement. Civic engagement is the practice of participating in and making a difference in the civic life of a community through the informed and active participation of its citizens. Civic engagement aims to strengthen society and to create conditions in which all individuals, groups, and organizations can participate fully in public life at all levels. Civic engagement includes a wide range of activities, such as voting, running for office, attending public meetings, and volunteering. Civic engagement also includes efforts to improve the quality of life in a community, such as supporting local businesses, participating in community service projects, and advocating for policies that benefit the community. Civic engagement is essential for a healthy democracy and a vibrant community.

The Tennessee Municipal League is committed to promoting civic engagement and to supporting its members in their efforts to engage their communities. The league offers a variety of resources and tools to help members promote civic engagement, including the Civic Engagement Toolkit, which provides guidance and resources for promoting civic engagement in local communities. The league also offers training and workshops on civic engagement, as well as resources and tools for promoting civic engagement through social media. Additionally, the league works with its members to promote civic engagement through partnerships with local organizations and community groups.

The Winchester parking Authority is partnering with the Tennessee Association of Government Award from government for their excellence in excellence in local government organizations that leverage modern operations management technology to solve problems, work smarter and improve their communities. The city of Johnson City was among 10 communities to receive the national award based on their accomplishments and improvements to the city. City leaders are connecting all cities in several core areas, including infrastructure management and improvement, operational efficiency, and data-driven decision-making. In its adoption of Cartegraph, the city integrated unrelated applications into a single solution to manage the workloads of multiple departments. The departments of Public Works and Water and Sewer Services have 240 employees using Cartegraph. These users complete an average of 1,000 tasks each week. Two different departments, facilities management and parks and recreation, are beginning to use the software this year.

MC JULIET

The city of Mt. Juliet has secured $1.8 million in grants for new greenway and sidewalk projects. The Mt. Juliet Bicycle and Pedestrian Advisory Committee is helping guide city commissioners on plans for new walking, running, and cycling infrastructure improvements. The city projects include the $2.2 million second phase of the Meadow Crest Trail between West Division Street and the railroad tracks. The project will also include the development of a park adjacent to the Greenbush Road underpass. The length of the park is expected to be approximately 100 feet.

Tennessee has fallen for more than 30 years, cities keeping their portion of the tax proceeds for their own schools and did not share the proceeds with the counties. The Tennessee General Assembly was aware of this longstanding issue.

During that 30-year period, the General Assembly amended the liquor laws several times, but even then the counties and other stakeholders recognized that the legislation was not sufficient to protect their interests. This indicated that the legislature, the legislature, and the counties and other stakeholders were aware of the liquor laws.

Considering the specific language used by the legislature in the counties, the counties and other stakeholders in favor of the liquor laws. In 1964, it was determined that the counties and other stakeholders would not share the proceeds with the counties. To read the unanimous opinion in favor of the counties, all authored by Justice Holly Kirby, visit the opinions section of the Tennessee Supreme Court website at TML.org.

The U.S. birthrate is at its lowest point in 32 years, and after declining steadily over the past four years, according to data recently released by the National Center for Health Statistics. The birth rate declined 2.4 percent to an estimated 3.78 million babies born in 2018, marking the lowest annual birth rate since 1971, the first calendar year for which general fund revenues exceeded the budgeted estimates. Revenues were $8.9 million more than the estimate and the most since 2012. Revenues exceeded estimates by $259 million.

Fallen officers remembered during 2019 memorial service

Gov. Bill Lee addresses law enforcement officers and the families of fallen officers at the 2019 Law Enforcement Officer Memorial Ceremony during the Fallen Officers Memorial held at the War Memorial Plaza in Nashville. Lee said that words are “inadequate” to offer comfort or express gratitude to fallen officers and their families but thanked them for their service to the state of Tennessee.

Members of the Tennessee State Lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police salute the family members of fallen officers as they are introduced at the 2019 Law Enforcement Officer’s Memorial service held at the Fallen Officers Memorial on the War Memorial Plaza in Nashville.

Above: Metropolitan Nashville Police Sgt. Henry Particelli performs his song “For the Good Guys” as part of the memorial service. Scottie DeLashmit, president of the Tennessee FOP state lodge, said he asked Particelli to participate in the ceremony after hearing him perform the original song at the dedication of the new Nashville Police Headquarters.
